Welcome

Are you looking for an extra income? Working as a "secret shopper" may be the opportunity for you to pursue. There are many assignments for many companies in many fields of interest. We have researched and catalogued some opportunities for you to review more carefully. The secret shopper field can be exciting. You can:

- Be your own boss.
- Choose your own hours.
- Work when you like.
- Save on travel, clothing and child care expenses.

All over America, people are changing the ways and the places they choose to work. Reports indicate that one out of every eight Americans is working or running a business from home. Homemakers, students, teachers, hobbyists, retirees - people just like you and I - are all working from home or can be working from home soon. And now, there are even more ways to work from home using the Internet and your computer.

When considering an assignment from a research company or similar opportunity, always review the opportunity carefully. If you are required to send money as a registration fee or for materials, gain a total understanding of what your money is buying, what you will receive and what is expected of you. This will help you avoid disappointment or misunderstanding later.

Finally, good luck! You have taken the first step. The next step should be even easier!

1. What Mystery Shopping Is And What Mystery Shoppers Do

Mystery Shoppers (also known as Secret Shoppers) are individuals who are trained or provided with instructions, who visit various retail establishments and who evaluate the establishment on a given set of criteria. Visits are conducted anonymously, with the shopper posing as a regular customer, often making a purchase, and then evaluating the customer service, store appearance, and other important criteria. The Mystery Shopper then reports these results, most often through the Internet.

As a Mystery Shopper, you will be paid for each visit, and in addition, you will also often receive free products or services when it is necessary to make a purchase during the course of the Mystery Shop. Typical places shopped include restaurants, gas stations, banks, and all types of retail stores. Most of these places are probably the same as where you already shop.

In general, you may be required to do a taste test at a fast food restaurant or asked to evaluate the performance of an attendant at a full-service gasoline station. Likewise, you may be asked to rate the quality of service given at a convenience store or super market, or may even be asked to verify that coffee is fresh and hot for a breakfast promotion. Professional market research firms have numerous projects going on constantly and each differs based on the client and its specific objective for that project and period of time.

Let me tell you about a recent mystery shopping assignment with a personal example. One of the biggest restaurant chains in the nation has a mystery-dining program. Their program is simple: a "mystery diner" visits every restaurant every week.

Every manager knows that the next customer could be a mystery diner. Every waiter and waitress knows that the next table could be the weekly mystery diner. Nobody knows what day or time the restaurant will be reviewed. And, the manager knows that more than 20% of their bonus is based on a compilation of the weekly mystery diner reviews. Every waiter and waitress knows they can get a bonus for a good mystery diner review.

The result: This chain is one of the most successful in the country. One has to believe that their quest for perfection with weekly restaurant reviews is a big part of their success.

My spouse and I were "mystery diners" for this chain a few years ago. We received training (over lunch of course) with a group of about 50. The chain demanded that we fill out a detailed 10 - 15 page questionnaire after every visit. Some typical questions:

- Describe the host/hostess
- How long before the waiter/waitress greeted you after you were seated
- Were the rest rooms clean and tidy
- How was the apple pie special
- Was the main entree served at the correct temperature
- Did the waiter/waitress check back promptly after the meal was served

As you can see, the work is straightforward, not too difficult, and it can be a lot of fun. We actually reviewed a different restaurant for them weekly for about 4 months. A nice assignment!

2. If You Have What It Takes To Be A Mystery Shopper

As a Mystery Shopper, you will be paid for each visit, and in addition, you will also often receive free products or services when it is necessary to make a purchase during the course of the Mystery Shop. Typical places shopped include restaurants, gas stations, banks, and all types of retail stores. As we have indicated, most of these places are probably the same as where you already shop.

To become a Mystery Shopper, you will usually need easy access to Internet and email. You may be required to pass an online training session for each new shopping assignment before you are assigned a shop.

Some general requirements used by most research companies include:

- Maintain updated user profile at all times.
- Refrain from the disclosure, distribution, demonstration, in any form, of any information relating to research company or mystery shop business operations, methods of operation, trademarks or any other proprietary system currently operating, or developed by each party in the future.
- Maintain strict confidentiality in the completion of all assignments, accept assignments as an independent contractor, and take responsibility for any necessary government regulations, taxes or submissions associated with such work.

Agree to conduct yourself in a manner consistent with the required assignment.

3. Why Businesses Are Willing To Pay You To Shop

Mystery Shopping is used by corporations to measure the level of service that customers are experiencing at each location. It is a valuable service with the ultimate goal of improving the service that customers receive throughout various retail establishments.

Every type of business could benefit from mystery shoppers. They hire research or marketing companies, who in turn seek your assistance in completing the requested shops. Never announce that you are a mystery shopper to the business being shopped unless given specific instructions by the research company. Most often the employees know they are going to be shopped in a given time period, but they don't know exactly when or who will be performing the assignment.

You are the link that keeps the Corporate Headquarters informed. For a business to be successful, they must maintain top quality customer satisfaction. They can better please the customer if they understand how the customer is being treated and if their product is being sold as they intended.

You will go "undercover" and act like a typical customer. In fact, many of your assignments may be for stores and firms you already frequent. Some places may want you to go to their establishment only during certain hours or days. Most often, though, you are able to request the hours of the day that are best for you, like early mornings, late afternoons, early evenings or even overnight.

4. Who Hires Mystery Shoppers And How To Contact Them

Professional market research firms that specialize in "mystery shopping" operate throughout the United States and Canada. Of course shopping assignments are available throughout the world.

Shoppers are given assignments directly by the mystery shopping company's research firm, also called a contract scheduling company. The way in which shoppers are identified for assignments is for them to first contact the research company and/or the scheduler and to complete the appropriate application process. Typically, the application process is conducted on-line. In almost every case, the company will require the mystery shopper to complete a separate application for each company that requests a shopping assignment.

A typical research firm obtains, collects, and summarizes various types of information for clients nationally. The "mystery shoppers" are sent into client stores to anonymously observe and report a variety of activities ranging from customer service, sales promotions, store cleanliness, and even theft-related activities. These observations are then reported and subsequently summarized by the research company for a client's use.

We have provided a directory of contact information. This directory, taken from our state-of-the art computer database, consists of mystery shopping recruiters, agencies, schedulers, and research companies that hire mystery shoppers. You can go to any of these web sites right now and fill out their online applications.

Our directory provides information including name, web site URL, typical assignments and contact information. Again, most companies prefer, and many these days only allow, online applications.

If you want to find a mystery-shopping employer in your area and you can't find one in our directory, look in your local yellow pages for Marketing Research companies.

5. What To Do--And What You Should Never Do--When Working With Mystery Shopping Companies

There are many professional standards for mystery shoppers. In short, maintain high morals and ethics. Here are some guidelines:

- 1. Agree to give immediate notice to the company if you cannot perform a shop for any reason.
- 2. Agree to honor all confidentiality agreements that the research company and/or client may require.
- 3. Agree to keep paperwork and notes for at least 60 days in case questions arise by the research company and/or client.
- 4. Agree to perform all shops to the best of your ability.
- 5. Agree to return follow up calls, letters or e-mails in a timely manner.
- 6. Agree to submit all reports on or before the deadline.
- 7. Comply with applicable government laws, regulations and ordinances.
- 8. Conduct mystery-shopping services according to the client guidelines.
- 9. Conduct mystery-shopping services in an honest, timely and ethical manner.
- 10. Do not perform any shops under the influence of illegal drugs, alcohol or prescription drugs that might impair your abilities.

- 11. Do not accept a mystery shopping assignment for a business that you, your family or friends work for
- 12. Do not contact a client directly without approval of research company.
- 13. Do not disrupt the normal business flow of a retail store, gas station, amusement park, etc in the process of performing a shop.
- 14. Do not share information with other people or firms on which clients conduct shops or disclose which research company has which clients.
- 15. Do not share information with others on shopping fees and reimbursements for specific clients.
- 16. Follow principles of honesty, professionalism, integrity, fairness and confidentiality to guard the interests of the public and clients in order to promote good business practices.
- 17. Never announce that you are a mystery shopper to the business being shopped unless given specific instructions by research company.
- 18. Must be able to communicate your shopping experiences through written evaluation forms. Some research companies give you multiple-choice questions, but most ask for data in essay form.
- 19. Never falsify or misrepresent reports, actual experiences or visits.
- 20. Respect your clients and the general public.
- 21. Thoroughly read each question on the survey and the guidelines provided by research company before undertaking any shopping experience.
- 22. You must be able to recognize and remember the important elements and details of a shopping experience.

6. What Equipment Do I Need

It will be hard to do most assignments without access to the Internet. If you do not have Internet access at home or work, please try the Public Library.

You will also need transportation. If you don't have your own car, make sure you can easily access the location of your assignment by public transportation.

- You'll want to keep good records. A computer is very useful for this. Yet, you may also keep:
- A log-book or manila file folder of assignments completed
- Companies you have registered with along with last contact and/or date of registration.
- Upcoming assignments

Many companies, in order to streamline operations and take advantage of cost saving technology only accept reports via e-mail and/or online forms that you can access on their Web sites. In fact, many research companies conduct almost all their business via the Internet. Why? It is faster, cheaper and more efficient

7. Tips For Getting Hired

- 1. Find a mystery shopping company close to your home and call to set up an appointment. Nothing beats a face-to-face interaction. Plus, often that face-to-face meeting will help you move right to the top of the "pile".
- 2. To show a research company you are serious, write up a "sample" mystery shopping report. To get hired by the national restaurant company described above, I wrote up a sample review from an actual visit to another restaurant. Remember, you want to show you are serious and that you have the skills it takes to do the job. Writing up a sample report will do show your skills.
- 3. It may be worth your time to apply to every company with an online application process. It takes time, but remember, it's just a numbers game to get started.
- 4. Consider setting up an e-mail account specifically for use in your mystery-shopping search. Web sites such as hotmail.com and yahoo.com offer popular free e-mail addresses. You may not want to mix your personal e-mails with your recruiting contacts and you might be getting a lot of e-mail back.
- 5. If there is a phone number you might try and call first. Of course, many are long distance calls, so keep your phone calls to a minimum or use a cell phone that includes free long distance.
- 6. Make sure you provide detailed answers to every question. Be honest and grammatically correct. Avoid all typos.
- 7. Many on-line forms will ask you to describe your mystery shopping or other experiences. Other companies may ask you for a writing sample. Prepare both documents in a word processor and keep on file for every application. You can cut and paste by using your CTRL+ C keys to copy and CTRL + V keys to paste.
